Harold G. Campbell Sentenced in Montgomery County for Theft From the Elderly

Court Orders $74,413.15 in Restitution

Following a criminal referral by the Ohio Department of Commerce - Division of Securities and a guilty plea to one count of theft from the elderly, Montgomery County Court of Common Pleas Judge Dennis J. Langer today ordered Harold G. Campbell, 66, of Richmond, Kentucky, to pay restitution to his elderly victim in the amount of $74,413.15.

Campbell was sentenced to one to five years of probation and ordered to pay back his victim in monthly amounts not less than $650 per month. Failure to abide by the terms of the sentence could send Campbell to prison for up to three years.

The conviction and sentence stems from the theft of funds from an elderly relative, who is a Montgomery County resident. Campbell solicited the relative to invest money with him, with a guaranteed return of 5% annually. Instead of investing the money, Campbell used it to pay personal expenses and for other personal payments.

The case was prosecuted by the Office of the Montgomery County Prosecutor Mathias Heck, Jr.
